PREFACE.

Since the issue of our last Richmond City Directory, numerous removals by our citizens have taken place. Two years witness many changes; some familiar and respected names are regretfully dropped, their owners having gone to the Christian's hope—a better land. Others have sought greener pastures in localities where the sun seemed to shine brighter and the business atmosphere to be more vigorous. In the places of those, new faces have appeared among us, and new names are here intermingled with the old ones. While we regret the names that have departed, we welcome the new ones, and our local pride is flattered by the knowledge that on the whole the city is more than holding its own, and that our population is larger by some two thousand than it was two years ago.

In the compilation and preparation of this work, special efforts have been made to secure the name of every person over fifteen years of age, and we have taken particular pains to verify the work of the canvassers wherever we found anything doubtful. Therefore, while anything like perfection in this kind of a work can not be expected, we feel satisfied it is on the whole well done, and will be found valuable to those who need it as a book of reference to the homes of our people.

Total City Indebtedness.....	$78,000 00
Cash on hand.....	39,078 67
Net City Indebtedness.....	$38,921 33

The total estimated cost of new buildings erected in the city for the year ending April 30, 1888, was $74,000, of which thirty-eight were frame, costing $25,300, and nineteen were brick, costing $48,700. In addition to this, new buildings were erected at Earlham College, costing upwards of $50,000.

The rate of taxation for city purposes is the same as for several years past, viz: $1.00 on the $100 valuation, and 50 cents on each poll.

The total number of deaths reported during the year ending April 30, 1888, was 218, or 90 less than the year preceding. Taking as a basis of calculation the census of 1886, the death rate is twelve in each one thousand of population. The number of births was 318.
